These gilts were placed with Daniel P. Lott, Jr., Route 2, Sweatman, and Harold Ray Bowen, Route 4, Grenada. These boys will care for their pig, planning to raise more good quality pigs. They will give one gilt back to the Kiwanis Club from the first litter of pigs. This pig will be given to another boy and the chain continued.

This Pig Chain Program will help many boys to have good quality pigs for his 4-H club project.

The Kiwanis Club have made plans to buy pigs and place them with 4-H club members soon.

We got a clipping and a letter about a big gar fish from Dr. Frank Smith in Greenwood, but we will have to use it next week. We are just too damn crowded this week.

Grenada Livestock Auction Opened May 15

In our little headline we didn't have room to mention the two nanny and two billy goats sold; nor the fact that a seller didn't have room to unload a truck of mules. Everyone attending is a potential buyer, but since the GCW doesn't know each and every potential buyer's middle name, we will only record that 2 buyers from Swift Packing Co., 1 Mid-South; 1, Kenneth-Murry; 1, Jackson Packing Co. and Top and Stocker Hog buyers from a far piece were in attendance. The facilities of Branscome's Barn compare favorably with much larger trade area's and is an asset to the Grenada Trade Area.

Owners J. D. Branscome and Glen Baker advertised that they were in business beginning Friday, May 15 at 1 p. m. and every Friday thereafter. They have two experienced men in the auction business, namely Col. A. G. Moore, auctioneer, and Guy Branscome, ringman. The owners, their friends and well-wishers, and, last but not least, the po' farmer-cattleman who sells his bovine, swine, etc., were mighty happy about the capacity crowd.

(Editorial Intended For Last Week)

"The Guilty Flee When No Man Pursueth"

That's a pretty good head for a piece whether the reading matter fits the head, or the head fits the reading matter, or not.

Anyway, on Friday morning after the distribution of our last week's issue, we went over to the Star to lend them a cut of Avent III and get a cut of the Nurses Home. Mrs. Grimes, the executive editor of the Star, acted like she was all het up about something she saw in our recent issue and which, apparently, she did not like too much and said I see where you put OUR names in the paper.

Knowing almost positively that I did NOT have THEIR names in our paper and seeing one of our papers handy, I asked her to show me WHAT item she was referring to, at which she pointed out this:

"We could have got a big ad out of Dr. Rayford, but we told him to write a little piece, whatever is in your heart' and that's what he did. You gdyankees, who read this, please remember that Dr. Rayford is a Negro doctor, and Dr. Avent is a white doctor."

I attempted to say to her and to repeat to all readers that I was NOT referring to them at all as gdyankees but, if they were gdyankees, they were not the ONLY such who get our paper; that many folks of the North get our paper and read it.

My innocent purpose in writing that paragraph, truly, was this: to attempt to show what many folks call gdyankees, many of whom believe there is constant friction and hatred in the South between whites and blacks, that a Negro doctor in Grenada, Mississippi, Deep South, wanted to pay a voluntary tribute, which cost him nothing, to a colleague or contemporary of the White race and that's all I wanted to show.

Since I did not mention the name, Grimes, and since I had no intention of reflecting in any way on them, I dont deem it necessary to apologize but I am merely explaining.

And that should wind the whole affair up.

A Comedy Of Errors

Telephone girls are very ingenious and imaginative and even show remarkable skill as detectives but the best way to get in telephonic contact with another person is to tell the girl the RIGHT name of the person being called, the town he lives in and, if possible, his phone number and I will tell you a true story about what happened Sunday.

I had to have something done for our pontiac that fred griffin said he was not properly equipped to do in the right manner so he told me to take it to chuck walters (please follow the evolutions in this name) at delta chevrolet company in greenwood. i tried to call walters sunday about 11 and the girl reported that there was only one walters in greenwood, that she had called that one and the phone did not answer. i told her hell i guess he is at preaching where he should be and that i will call after dinner. i did call after dinner again the phone did not answer and i explained he was probably fishing or at one of those gambling dives in greenwood. then it occurred to me that i did not actually want chuck walters. I knew this dude once worked for joe neely so i called old joe but like nearly everybody also old joe did not answer so i called little joe and eventually got him to the phone and little joe said it was not walters but waters but he did not know the initials but it was something like chuck i then TRIED to call fred griffin to get the right name but fred was out like everybody else so i called the girl again and explained that the fellow i wanted was a dude named waters who was with delta chevrolet company and, pronto, i was in contact with o e waters in greenwood and got the arrangements made and told him i would call him from the first filling station in greenwood so he could meet me at the garage and it looked like my name-spelling trouble was over for the day but the troubles were not all over yet when we got out on carrollton avenue at a billups station i got a courteous billups man to change a five dollar bill for me to get a dime then borrowed a telephone "dictionery" and began looking for o e waters there was no "w" in the book so me and the attendant looked and looked and finally found o e waters and i said that's the dude i called and got him and soon delivered the car to him and those troubles are now his troubles and the insurance company's troubles all of this long rigamarole came about thru the fact that i did not know the name of the fellow i wanted to talk to and if i didn't know how could the telephone girl know and a whole lot of kicks against the telephone company come about in such a manner thru OUR fault not THEIR thus ended a sunday afternoon tale

The Grass-Killer

I have had a lot to say about grass killers who most often wear ragged britches, live in shacks and set sow belly and have contrasted them with grass-users who wear good clothes, live in mansions and eat cavair; I have said a lot and, come to think about it I used to DO something about it and here's how:

At Oxberry I had a lot of grass-killing tenants and half-hands engaged in killing grass out of cotton and corn. After about a year of trying to live on my part of cotton and corn, I saw I just could not "make it" that way, so I started to raising lespedeza and selling it, in baled form, to grass-killers in the delta, by the car load. I recall that, when an unseasonable hay harvest developed, I did not lose faith in hay and plow up hay fields. On the contrary, I planted MORE hay.

I recall also that I never worried when rain fell on a day's cutting of hay because I knew the same rain that ruined one day's cutting of hay would make more hay in fields not yet cut. I never figgered that a rain hurt a hay saver for that reason.

I am not saying at this late date that I made a big success there. I did not. Eventually the depression years "got" me like it did most others; but hay kept me going a good many years. Had I kept on killing grass, I would have been broke the 2nd year instead of about the 15th year.

Keeping The Record Straight

Dorothy, who has kept our records for a good while, is going to leave about June 1st.

Both she and I want every record to be "straight" when she leaves so that her successor can take over "clean" records.

To that end, she is going to mail out to the very FEW who (our records show) owe us; to the MANY who (our records show) are behind in their subscriptions.

We are going to do this; not to try to get in a big pile of money all at once; but to urge those who get notices, and who think we are wrong, to come forward and seek to correct our records, if they are wrong.

Please dont waint until Dorothy is gone to come around and say, "that's wrong"; please come around before she leaves.

That looks like a fair proposition.

"No Solution"

When Governor White was approached on the question, "What will Mississippi do if the U. S. Supreme Court makes segregation in the public schools illegal?", he answered that he had no solution or remedy, or words to that effect.

Governor White was telling the truth. He did not know what Mississippi (and other similar states in the South) would do, or COULD do. Nobody knows what will be done, can be done, or should be done.

This state is making what we frankly admit is a belated attempt to follow the 50-years-old decision to make schools equal, if separate. REAL progress has been made in recent years to equalize the facilities. Eventually, if the present trend is followed, the Negro schools will be as good as those of the white schools in the various elements where such schools are today decidedly UNequal.

No small newspaper has cried loud er or longer than the GCW in its warnings that this "thing" would eventually break, and that we had better "do better for the colored kids." The crying and howling of the GCW and others who thought like we did eventually brought a bettering of conditions but all of us admit that the schools yet are far from equal in facilities.

Hot-headed white folks and hot-headed Negroes, wanting big changes quick, may bring the whole school system of the State tumbling in confusion and chaos on our heads.

Mississippi may decide as Georgia and South Carolina have already decided, to do away with the whole concept of "free schools for all", now almost universally applied to school matters. If that is done, who will suffer? It is obvious that most of the suffering will be among the people needing education MOST and being LESS able to pay for education of their children.

Those who want TOO much TOO soon, had better stop and think!!

You May Be One Of Them

I have just looked at our mailing list and see a lotta folks who have been notified but who have NOT paid up.

Big-shot newspapers cut off such folks right jam on the spot. We PRETEND to cut 'em off, but dont.

We monkey along with them a good while for we have learned that MOST folks WANT the paper and will (eventually) come around and pay up.

We may be kidding ourselves by saying to ourselves, "That dude WANTS the GCW and WILL (some sweet day) come around."

This subtle message may fit YOU. Does it?

"Neal Blames Beats For County Changes"

A very informative article, headed just like this editorial is headed, appeared in the Commercial Appeal Sunday from the pen of Kenneth Toler, who was telling what Will Neal, the State Auditor, was saying about what the GCW calls "beat government", that is the county government such as Grenada County has in what the GCW calls, "5 counties in 1 county" set-up.

Neal says in what he calls the "outmoded beat system" his department has found many irregularities in expenditure accounts.

About the beat system he says:

State Auditor Neal said records of many of the 82 counties "bear evidence from year to year of funds having been spent illegally, extravagantly and occassionally, improperly withheld or inadvertently misapplied."

Under the beat system, each of the five supervisors in a county is responsible for all operations in his area from which he is elected for a 4-year term.

"While there is not much the department can do about extravagant spending, except, of course, to try to ascertain the reasons therefor, it can and does do a great deal about the monies which have been spent illegally or otherwise improperly handled. It takes exceptions thereto and demands that the amounts involved be restored or paid into the proper treasuries", Mr. Neal said.

No Co-ordinated Systems

"Failure of many boards of supervisiors to establish disciplinary and co-ordinated systems of purchasing supplies and equipment and budgeting income strictly in accordance with the rules and procedures prescribed by the Legislature is responsible more than anything else for relatively large amounts of the revenues being spent in both a reckless and an illegal manner.

"A case in point is a county in which the board of supervisors last year acepted all bids submitted by various dealers in sundry supplies and road materials, regardless of dif ferences in prices quoted, and then proceeding to purchase large quantities from the high bidders.

"Of course, that resulted in overcharges of sizable amounts on many of the items. In the purchase of one particular item alone the overcharge amounted to $4,782," he said.

The official said his department "has not only taken exception to such overcharges in this county (which he did not name) but in some other counties as well, with a view of recovering the amounts involved, since they definitely represent illegal expenditures."

It seems that extravagance in spending county money is NOT a matter for investigation, just so the expenditure, whatever it amounts to, is within the law.

Mr. Neal did not mention Grenada County or any other county by name, but he gave a general overall picture of the "out moded beat system, like that of Grenada County, where we have 5 counties in 1 small county."

Mr. Neal painted with a few strokes of his brush what we have been trying to paint with many strokes of our brush all these months and we are indebted to him.

If anything like the things he mentioned occurred in Grenada County, such things will be mentioned in the audit report of Grenada County later this year to be published in the GCW.

In nothing I have ever written have I accused anyone of dishonesty or crookedness.

I have said, do say and will continue to say that our system of having 5 counties in 1 small county is wasteful, extravagant and, to use Neal's word, "outmoded." I continue to say that the supervisors now serving did not create this system, but that they merely inherited it.

I still think our local set-up should be changed by one of two methods: REdistrict the county, or change to the county-unit system.

Some Help, At Last

For a long, long time, the GCW has been fussing about the "5 counties in 1 county" system, prevalent here and in most counties, of building and maintaining county roads.

We are happy to see in the annual report of the Mississippi Economic Council, one of the cardinal objectives of this council stated thus:

All counties in Mississippi should be mandatorily required by the legislature to administer, maintain and build their roads as county units.

Whitten On Agriculture

Congressman Jamie L. Whitten, Dem. of Miss., said in Columbus, O. last Thursday that the welfare of agriculture with sound and stable prices for farm products was essential for the economic prosperity of the nation.

Congressman Whitten, for four years Chairman of the Appropriations Committee for the Department of Agriculture, appeared on a public affairs forum with Congressman Clifford Hope, R. of Kansas, Chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the House of Representatives of the U. S. In the hour long program, carried over joint TV and radio stations, Mr. Whitten stated that for any five year period in the history of the nation the total national income has been approximately seven times that received for agricultural commodities by the farmer. "Thus", he said, "a drop of $1.00 in prices received by farmers will shop up at seven times that much drop in national income."

"Already, within about a year and a half", we have had about a 12 percent drop in farm prices. With our present national debt, and with about 80 to 85 percent of our annual expenditures going for interest on the debt, for national preparedness, and on past wars, this nation cannot stand a great fall in national income and handle our debt."

"Since agriculture is the basis for practically all our material and usable wealth, we must keep that industry economically healthy."

"Today, farming is a commercial operation. In 1900, approximately 85 percent of the nation's people lived on the farm and only 15 percent in our cities. Today the figures are reversed. About 16 percent of the nation's people, with an investment of 140 billion dollars, feed and clothe the rest of us. In 1951 these farmers, with a 140 billion dollar investment, spent approximately twenty-one and a half billion dollars in making a crop. They made some profit in the overall. However, in 1952 farm income dropped; but cost went up. That condition can continue only at the risk of more people quitting the farm, with a drop in national income that would make our national budget even more unbalanced than now. We cannot handle or live with a national debt of 250 billion dollars unless we have a high national income!"

"At this time when disease and insects are destroying billions of dollars worth of agricultural commodities each year, and one-third of all perishable commodities are lost in handling; when one-half the cost of many foods on the New York City market is added to the price after the commodities cross the Hudson River, we certainly need additional funds for research in marketing and handling costs. We need research not only to prevent losses but in the field of marketing, so we may bring more closely together the price paid by the consumer and the price received by the farmer."

"Since the nation must now depend on so few people on the farm we need research in the development and use of farm machinery, and expansion of rural electrification so that the benefits of electricity may be not only enjoyed by the farmer but actually used for the purpose of meeting the nation's need for production at this time when there is so little labor on the farm."

"We need soil conservation and restoration in a nation which has wasted 40 percent of its land. We need to give attention to reforestation and many other things; but primarily and foremost we must have sound and stable prices for agricultural commodities, for it is there that the base of our economic prosperity rests. Every depression this nation has had led off by a drastic break in farm prices. We can't afford another. The answer, I think, is that as long as we have tariffs for industry and minimum wages for labor, we must have a firm support price for storable agricultural commodities with self-imposed controls to prevent over-production."

"In the commercial farming of today it costs money to grow agricultural commodities. If they are not needed, the farmer can at least save the cost of production and the wear and tear on his soil. Such a program gives stability and balance."

"A firm and stable price support program is good for agriculture and essential to the national welfare."

My Conscience

Lesson for May 24, 1953

"FOLLOW your conscience; but be sure you do not have the conscience of a donkey." This advice is old but still good. It is never right to go against your conscience; but it is very important to have your conscience right in the first place. Conscience is never quite automatic. It is not born in us so much as it is built-in. If it were born in us, that is to say if we were made so that we would never have to have any one explain to us the difference between right and wrong, and would always know by instinct just what is right in every situation, then not only would we all agree (which we don't), but if a child were brought up, say, by wolves, then he would know right from wrong just as unerringly as if he had been brought up in a Bishop's household. What is born in each of us is the capacity to tell right from wrong, just as we are born with the capacity for speech. We have to learn to talk; likewise we have to learn right from wrong. Conscience is also the capacity for knowing what is right without thinking about it. It is a kind of moral habit, just as walking is a balancing habit.

Dr. Foreman

I Am Not Alone

The best, the most reliable conscience in this world is the Christian conscience. A Christian has certain automatic moral attitudes; or rather these tend to become automatic with practice. Watch a trained first baseman catch balls thrown to him. He will tap the base with his toe without stopping to think or look around. He was not born with that habit; but he can learn it to perfection, and perfection comes with practice. Just as the athlete's habits are in line with the rules of the game, the Christian's moral habits—his conscience—will be in line with the principles of Christ. One of these principles is laid down by Paul in I Cor. 8:7-13. It is this: I should never act as if I were the only person involved. I must always think how my actions will touch other persons. I am not alone in this world; I depend on others and they on me. Will my action help to make others strong or will it make them weak?

• • •

My Body Is a Temple

Another Christian principle is laid down by St. Paul in I Cor. 6:18-20. It is this: My body is a temple of the Holy Spirit. To put that as boldly as possible: God makes his home in every Christian; that is where God especially lives, in this world. Now the more clearly we can remember that, the more intensely we can believe and appreciate it, the more God-like our lives will be. This does not mean we never have to stop and think. It does not mean we have an automatic conscience. It does not mean that whatever we may take a notion to do will be all right, since we are the children of God. What this does mean, as St. Paul preached and practiced it, is that by "practising the presence of God" we more and more reliably think, "What would Jesus want me to do? What would be the Christ-like thing?" A man of ordinary self-respect will not drag himself through the mud; but the Christian conscience shrinks from dragging the Holy Spirit through the mire

Invitation to Think

How does all this work out in practice? The intelligent Christian reader is invited to do some thinking about this. Let us suppose there is a party and alcoholic drinks are served. The "polite" thing to do is just to do what most others do, or in other words count noses to see what is right. But what is the Christian thing to do? What other persons will be affected by my action, and how will my behavior affect them? Then what about the Holy Spirit within me? What would God have to say? Or again, thinking over his everyday habits—habits of speaking, thinking, acting — the Christian will ask: How many other people are involved in this habit of mine? Does it help them? Or does it get in their way, irritate them, rouse bad feelings in their minds? And what about God? Even if no one but God knows what I think, or what I do, what he thinks about it is the most important point of all. If I were God, what would I think of me?

SPORTSMAN COLUMN

(By C. C. Hamby, Sr.)

The State Game and Fish Commission has already set the opening and closing dates of all game in Mississippi. There was no change in dates or limit from last year. This does not apply to migratory birds as they are controlled by the federal government. All licenses will be the same as last year and your licenses expire June 30th.

The excess amount of rain sure has put the damper on all kinds of fishing and all lakes and streams; they are all full of muddy water.

Moon Lake, Matthews Brake, Horseshoe, Washington and Lake Jackson as well as several others are still clear and bream are being caught by the limit. Few bass and crappie are being caught.

By the time this goes to press, I'll have a report on Sardis Reservoir but I am sure you can catch crappie around the banks in shallow water. Several have gone up there as this is being written. I understand they are catching some of those 3 lb. crappie out of Arkabutla Dam (Coldwater River) fishing around the bank in muddy water. Arkabutla Dam is higher than it has ever been and the water is running over the emergency spillway. Sardis Reservoir is 4 or 5 feet lower than the hight it was 3 years ago. So unless there is more rain and lots more water, Sardis Reservoir will not get to flood stage. Enid Dam is almost full but will stand several more feet of water.

Let me insist that you come to the next wildlife meeting as this will be a very important meeting. Also, volunteer and pay your dues. Discussion of our site on the dam and fsihing mates before the water is impounded in the dam. Duck shooting possibilities, and planting food and etc., as well as several other important subjects will be discussed, so be there, pay your dues and help the Lague out.

If you will come by the Shell Service Station or phone us, we will give you the latest information we have on Sardis Reservoir and all other lakes and streams.

MISSISSIPPI HAS MUCH TO OBSERVE - ON 50TH BIRTHDAY OF POWER FLIGHT

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is another in a series of articles prepared by the State Aeronautics Commission designed to broaden the knowledge and interest of Mississippians in aviation.

Mississippians have been contributing to the progress of aviation for more than half a century, but during the current twelve months they are expected to concentrate on celebrating the 50th anniversary of power flight and the observance of their state's part in the modern air age.

Even before the turn of the century, a Mississippian, E. C. Huffaker of Oxford, was making a careful study of soaring birds which was published by the Smithsonian Institute in 1897. And even today at State College the subject is still being pursued for further information designed to help man more nearly approximate the flight of birds.

Since the historic first flight of the Wright Brothers at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, on December 17, 1903, Mississippi's aviation pioneers have been keeping pace with the rest of the world in furthering the usefulness of this modern machine.

Mississippi's observance, like those to be held in all states, was launched in Jackson February 18th at a meeting attended by aviation enthusiasts from all over the state. At this time a 23-man committee headed by Walter Bullock, executive assistant to the governor, was named to plan and carry out the year-long celebration.

The committee's proposed program already has received assurance of the support of the Mississippi Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Mississippi Flying Farmers, the Mississippi National Guard, the Civil Air Patrol and the Mississippi Airport Managers Association.

Two important projects of the committee, handled through the Mississippi Aeronautics Association, have already given the long term program a healthy push.

One was the appearance of a featured aviation speaker at the annual Mississippi Education Association Convention held in Jackson during the third week in March.

With aviation a standard course in public schools of the state, teachers attending this year's meeting heard John Furbay, nationally known aviation authority and director of Air World Education, on the subject, "Implication of The Airplane on Civilization."

At the same time Mississippi's education leaders were presented with a new 1953 Air Age Series booklet, "Fifty Flying Years", which was prepared and published by the Aeronautics Commission. This informative booklet, highlighting the history of flight throughout the world as well as in Mississippi, will also be given national distribution through the national committee for the 50th anniversary of powered flight.

Two outstanding aviation events which will highlight the year's observance are to be held in April.

The first is the fourth annual Southeastern Regional Conference of the Student Branch of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences to be held at Mississippi State College on April 9-10th. Representatives from schools throughout the south will participate in a program which has been arranged by Dr. August Raspet, director of the college engineering and research station which has gained national recognition in recent months.

For this outstanding conference the committee has secured as principal speaker Dr. A. M. Lippisch, designer of the deadly German Messerschmitt of World War II fame, an aviation expert who established Germany's training program prior to Hitler's rise.

Another equally interesting event to be staged in conjunction with the 75th anniversary of Mississippi State will be a Research Symposium April 24-25th which will be open to the general public.

Two aviation pioneers will perform for those attending the sessions, one in the air and the other on the speaker's platform.

Rudolph Opitz, a former German test pilot now at Wright Patterson Field, Ohio, will demonstrate the "Flying Wing", a revolutionary sailplane built in Germany before World War II and still a model for sailplanes of today.

The featured speaker will be Grover Loening of Mill Neck, New York, early designer and builder of planes and organizer of the company which is now under the Curtiss Wright banner. His subject will be "Commercial Aviation Hampered By War."

Mississippi's anniversary committee is especially urging participation by local organizations in the observance of outstanding aviation accomplishments in their respective communities and areas.

Special celebrations may be tied in with dedication of new airports, installation of lighting, completion of new facilities or similar other local accomplishments, the committee points out.

Civic club programs on aviation also are urged, and special projects may include model airplane contests, air tours, air fairs and similar functions of that nature.

Mississippi's aviation history is filled with numerous events which can easily be observed to help emphasize the importance of this industry to the state.

Mississippi is a pioneer in aerial agriculture, having contributed more to its development than most of the other states combined. For instance, the first commercial dusting by plane was accomplished in 1924 at Heathman, almost 30 years ago.

Two early Mississippi pioneers whose names are recorded in aviation's record books are the Key Brothers, Al and Fred of Meridian who established the world's sustained flight endurance record of 653 hours and 34 minutes in 1935, using their own planes.

Roscoe Turner of Corinth, another outstanding name in the history of flying, was one of the nation's first racing pilots, setting a transcontinental record in 1929, and winning the Cleveland Air Races in 1938, just fifteen years ago.

Others too numerous to mention, The Stinson family of Aberdeen, Lt. Commander George Anderson of Holly Springs, Richard E. Byrd's pilot on one of his postwar ventures to the South Pole; and numerous military heroes have all earned places of prominence in the annals of flying.

Because of the growing importance of aviation upon the lives of everyone and upon the industrial, agricultural and cultural development of the state, Mississippians are being urged by the anniversary observance committee to take part in this tribute to those pioneers who have been striving for 50 years to make flight of man faster, safer and more profitable for everyone.

Healthful Recreational Facilities
...help build Mississippi

Mississippi's varied and abundant recreational facilities are an important contribution both to the health of its people and its economy.

A yearly average of 227 days of sunshine adds to the enjoyment of these facilities, which include numerous lakes and streams in all areas of the state for fishing and swimming... good hunting in season... 40 roadside parks... 9 beautiful and well-equipped state parks... some 75 miles of semi-tropical Gulf Coast line ... four giant, man-made reservoirs.... Vicksburg National Military Park... and over 40 golf courses, open the year around.

Over 250,000 fishing and hunting licenses were issued to Mississippians and tourists during the last season and over 180 informational markers are being erected throughout the state to call attention to points of historic interest.

Mississippi's annual income from tourist and recreational expenditures is estimated at approximately $263,000,000, making this our state's third largest industry.

The growing use of electric power in Mississippi homes and on Mississippi farms has resulted in more leisure time for the average family. Like most Mississippians, the employees of Mississippi Power & Light Company — who number almost 1,000 and live throughout the 44-county area served by the Company — take advantage of this added free time to enjoy our state's pleasant recreational facilities.

The Company's annual payroll amounts to around $4,500,000. Since it is generally accepted that every payroll dollar turns over five times in a community in which it is spent, this means that Mississippi Power & Light Company employees create around $22,500,000 in trade activity every year. A good portion of this amount is spent for travel and recreation within our state.

In its efforts to encourage new industrial enterprises to locate in Mississippi the Company's Industrial Development Department finds that healthful recreational facilities are an important factor in choosing Mississippi as a plant site.

COSTS MORE TO PROVIDE—WORTH MORE, TOO

It costs us more than twice as much to add telephones today as it did back in 1945 . . . That's because our dollars buy smaller amounts of all the things needed to expand telephone facilities . . . But the price of telephone service has gone up much less than most other things you buy.

Take Wire Costs for Instance . . .
A coil of wire like this cost us $7.65 in 1945; today the price is up to $18.80 . . . and we use more of this and other materials to meet the demand for more telephones.

Your Telephone Multiplies You! As more and more people become telephone customers, everyone's telephone grows in value . . . Mississippi's telephones have more than doubled from 115,000 in 1945 to 248,000 today.

Town Talk
BY FED ROBINSON

Sometimes we know people so well we cannot do business with them. Maybe this is the reason so many people in small towns will drive to the larger cities to do their shopping to the total disgust of local merchants. I guess we know the local clothier so well we feel if his merchandise was right up to the minute in styles and value, then why does he himself still wear that old suit we have seen him in for two or three years, and the same line of thought applies to other articles. Perhaps we ought to realize this good merchant friend of ours could and does have first class merchandise but it is for sale and since he is a working man like the rest of us, he cannot afford to splurge with a new suit every month and the fact that he doesn't is no reflection at all on the quality of his stock of men's suits. But, it still is true - sometimes we know people so well we refuse to do business with them.

Professional people have trouble with the same erroneous attitude. Many a well trained and fully qualified doctor will not dare come back to the home grounds to hang out his shingle but will go far away where he is less familiarly known. He knows that Mrs. Smith would hesitate to bring her little Johnny to this yuong doctor for treatments but rather she would say, "why I knew that doctor when he was in grade school - he always was the meanest boy in school and never made good grades - I just couldn't trust him treating my Johnny."

If I ever find the time I'm going to picket every barber shop in town with a sandwich sign reading: "All barber shops are unfair to men customers because none of them have established designs for hair-cuts". At all the women's beauty shops they have regular "do's" for the women to choose from such as the "Coldwave", "Swirl-a-Curl", "Tony" and about a hundred more patterns to suit the fancy, but a man can never know what he is going to get when the barber starts out on him. It seems the barber just plans the thing as he goes along and IF the hair lasts he will come to a conclusion after a time and shear off and holler "next." I think it is rather ebarrassing to stand before the mirror in the presence of all the waiting men and explain the type of haircut we want, so why not have all the kinds there are listed as Number 1, two, three, and then each customer could ask for the type of shearing he prefers and know something of how its going to look afterwards? As it is now neither the customer nor the barber has any idea what its going to look like when finished as neither of them pay attention to the others suggestions before hand but they just start cutting and talking, cutting and talking and as you see those big lumps of hair roll to the floor you know you are being skinned alive but you hate to interrupt the good barber as he tells about his coon hunting dog, and you squirm and sweat it out resignedly, and timidly but as you button-up your shirt collar you glance in the mirror and swear you'll never come in here again but in a couple of weeks you are right back begging for a light trim - a Tyrone Power kind please - and sure enough the same old cutting and big lumps of hair start rolling again, (aside to Red Martin and Pat Ray . . . my apologies friends - you two are certainly an exception, and I certainly miss you).

Out of the chaos

No longer are medicine and pharmacy a medley of quackery and mysticism. The shrines and temples, gods and high priests of medicine are of eras long past. Through the years medicine and pharmacy, imbued with the ideals and spirit of Christianity, have evolved into exacting professions in which magic and guesswork have no place. The results are manifest. Two hundred years ago life expectancy was 35 years; one hundred years ago, 39.8 years. Today it is about 69 years. Our part in the modern health service is compounding prescriptions. Let us contribute to your good health by serving you whenever the need arises.
